

Inspired by the Glorious and Great tales from Politacropolis' 20th Anniversary Good Food Feast, Sir Oze and his team invite you to share in a feast of sumptuousness, displaying the Theatre of Food in a manner as yet unheralded in this Barony of Ynys Fawr.

Themed around the conquests of that redoubted rogue and Goode Englishman, Vice Admiral Sir Francis Drake you will be feasted upon foods inspired by the Yule Court of Elizabethan England. Guests may want to think about their Elizabethan wardrobe for the evening.

The Feast will be presented in 4 courses followed with dessert, each course consisting of 4-5 dishes. Guests will need to bring their own cutlery, but that is all!

(They should probably bring their appetites as well - that would be a good idea!)

There will be some rather special and unique mementos of the feast; suitable to a stage of this magnitude, details of which will be revealed on the evening.

Because of the style of this Feast, attendance will be limited to 60 paying guests only (this will not change) If you cannot attend the event as a guest you may want to consider attending the Feast as a server. You will have your own food and a chance to see the behind the scenes workings of a great night as well as undertaking a role integral to a Feast of this type.

Saturday 8th December 2018, the Hall will open at 5:30pm with the Feast starting at 6:30pm

Pricing
